MORGAN CRESSMAN DIES ON AUGUST 28 AFTER LONG ILLNESS

Morgan Cressman, an old timer of the Didsbury district, died in the local hospital on Thursday afternoon, August 29th, having been admitted to that institution on August 19th, following a heart seizure.

Mr. Cressman homesteaded in the Carstairs district, March 23, 1899, and followed farming as an occupation until he retired in Didsbury, having sold his farm just south of town in 1944.

In the early days Mr. Cressman was noted for the pure bred horses he raised on his farm.

Surviving are his wife, Didsbury; three brothers: Milo of Staveloy, Bruce of Raven and Elliott of Hillcrest; also three sisters: Mrs. Ryckman, Bellingham, Wash.; Mrs. Purdy, Spokane, Wash.; and Zella of Didsbury.

Funeral services were held from the M.B.C. Church, Didsbury, at 2 p.m. on Saturday, August 31st, with Rev. C.J. Hallman officiating.

Palbearers were Eli Shantz, McShantz, Mr. Dehoney, W. Reist, N. Swalm and Ezra Sherrick.

Interment followed in the Didsbury cemetery with W. McFarquhar of Didsbury Funeral Home in charge of arrangements.

LONG YEARS AGO

September 7, 1904

Land guide Smith located ten settlers in the district this week.

D.C. Corbitt has sold his section farm to Dr. Lincoln of Missouri for a good price, $7,500.

The Kneehill Coal Co. Ltd. has acquired large areas in the well known Kneehill district and work has already started on the mining of a 5000-ton contract.

Barley and fall wheat are nearly all cut and oats harvesting has commenced.

Mr. Sawatzky, east of town, has cut a nice patch of wheat which is said to be good enough to make flour.

SHOWER FOR MRS. F.A. WALL FRIDAY, AUGUST 30

Honoring Mrs. F.A. "Happy" Wall who arrived last week from England, a shower was held at the home of Mrs. N. Eckel on Friday evening last. Twenty ladies were present and after a "can" contest and various games, the evening of honor was presented with a gaily decorated basket of gifts by Mrs. Foote, who in a few well chosen words welcomed Mrs. Wall to the town and also to Canada. Thanking one and all for their kindness Mrs. Wall said she had often heard of the Canadian hospitality and kindness and tonight was seeing an example. Having lived in Alberta for several years some time ago, when teaching school in the northern part of the province, she was not coming as a stranger but as an old acquaintance.

Lunch was served and best wishes for a happy future expressed by all.

Alberta's Wheat Crop May Yield 149,000,000 Bushels

A wheat crop of 149,000,000 bushels compared with 80,000,000 last year, is forecast for Alberta this season by the Alberta Wheat Pool crop report. The average wheat yield will be 19.9 bushels per acre, compared with 17.7 last year and a long-term average of 17.1.

The Pool points out that its estimates were made before threshing results are available from central and northern districts and consequently some changes may be expected as cutting and threshing advance.

HUGHES—WEARMOUTH

A quiet wedding was solemnized at the United Church Manse, by the Rev. D. Whyte Smith on the evening of Thursday, August 29th, when Doris Muriel Wearmouth, of Carstairs, was united in marriage to Alan Hughes, Didsbury.

The bride, given in marriage by her brother-in-law, Mr. Lowe of Crossfield, wore a dress of light blue with matching shoulder-length veil and carried a bouquet of red roses. She was attended by her sister Jean, who wore a rose red dress and carried pink roses. The groom was supported by his brother David.

The happy couple left by car for a short honeymoon at Banff.

PHEASANTS SET OUT BY GAME ASSOCIATION IN IDEAL TERRITORY

The 60 young pheasant chicks which were procured by the Didsbury Fish and Game Association from the Government Hatchery at Brooks, and released west of town this summer, are reported to be thriving in their natural surroundings of bush and water and if they survive the hunting season and the winter should greatly increase the pheasant population of this district in a few years.

While an open season has been declared on the "ring-necks" in this part of Alberta, hunters and sportsmen should refrain from shooting pheasants around Didsbury this year in an endeavor to get this fine game bird firmly established in our district. A little conservation now will give all sportsmen an opportunity later to enjoy the hunting of pheasants in years to come.

BAPTISMAL SERVICE

A Baptismal Service was held last Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. D.G. Buckler, at which the Rev. F.C. Mussen officiated. There were present also Mrs. J. Rowntree and Miss Hazel Rowntree of Carstairs. Those baptized were: Ronald Ernest, Jessie Barbara, Harry George Buckler and Catherine Nolla Rowntree.

WESTCOTT NEWS NOTES

Harvesting is in full swing in this vicinity, fields are rapidly being cut down and with so little frost to date, the outlook is excellent. No wonder farmers are happily looking forward to having something better this year.

Schools began at Westcott on Tuesday and we are fortunate to have our former teacher, Mrs. Konisch, back, especially with the shortage there is this year.

Mrs. Arthur Toonool and little son Bobby are visiting with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Levag.

Mrs. Roy Ireland of Calgary spent the week end at the H. Goetjen home and decided to stay out and help with the harvesting operation.

Mr. Donald Folkman, who has been ill for the past two to three weeks at his home, was removed to the hospital last week, not that his condition was worse, but it was thought that by so doing the condition in his lungs would be cleared up much sooner. Our best wishes Donald to a speedy recovery.

Following are the estimated yields per acre:

Wheat	19.9	11.7	17.1
Oats	40.4	22.8	33.1
Barley	28.8	18.1	24.7
Flax	9.5	6.2	12.9

Southern Alberta is expected to have an average wheat yield of 18.2 bushels per acre, which is the same as the average estimated for the Peace River district. Central Alberta may average 19.1 bushels of wheat per acre, and in the north yields should average in the neighborhood of 24.6 bushels per acre, although the latter area estimates are very difficult to make at the present time because the extent of frost damage is not definitely known.

In the case of southern and central Alberta light yields in eastern sections have brought down the general average. Crops are fairly good in the west.

"R.D." AT ST. ANDREWS

And now I have just time to gather up my family and go to church, and I hope you will all be doing the same. Good morning! In thousands of homes throughout the prairie provinces, this familiar Sunday morning message has been heard week after week for over five years, as R.D. Colquhoun, CBC's genial Neighbourly News Editor, concludes his broadcast of news

ALBERTA FARMERS' UNION NON-DELIVERY STRIKE BEGINS SEP. 6

Mr. Carl Stimpfle, president of the Alberta Farmers' Union, announced that an order had gone out to all locals of the organization to commence the non-delivery of farm products at midnight on Friday, September 6th.

While the farmers union is not protesting the set price of $1.55 a bushel for wheat, it does want parity prices for farm products, and in order to obtain this objective the non-delivery strike has been called.

DIDSBURY DISTRICT SURE CAN PRODUCE THE GOODS

The following note from one of our west subscribers, accompanied by a fine sample of fresh raspberries, corn, tomatoes, cucumbers and flowers was received by the editor on Tuesday and speaks for itself.

"Read your editorial regarding the garden spots of Alberta. These are some of the things grown in an ordinary farm garden to show you that I think the Didsbury district is about alright, in spite of the hail, frosts, etc."

GOLF TOURNAMENT POSTPONED

The golf tournament scheduled for last week end was postponed because many of the local players entered in the draw were away over the week end. However, the competition for the Silver Trophy will be held this week instead, and winners whose names are named in the draw published in The Pioneer last week are urged to contact their partners and complete both qualifying and final rounds by Sunday night, September 8th.

ARCHIBALD BROADHURST LAID TO REST FRIDAY, AUGUST 30 AT WESTCOTT

Archibald Broadhurst, farmer of the Didsbury district, since 1929, passed away at his home west of town on Wednesday, August 28th at the age of 58 years.

Born in Kidderminster, Worcestershire, England, in 1888, he came to Alberta in 1906 and settled in the Crossfield district. He was married in 1913 to Miss Katherine Nichol and in 1929 they moved to the Didsbury district to reside on the farm west of town.

His wife predeceased him in 1932. Surviving are four daughters, Milly, Ethel, Betty and Winnie, and two sons, William and Douglas.

Funeral services were held from the Westcott School on Friday, August 30th at 2 p.m. with the Rev. D. Whyte Smith officiating and a large crowd gathered to pay their last respects to a departing friend and neighbor.

Palbearers were: W. H. Davies, E. Couswell, J. H. Worthington, Jim Reek, Andy Vannoy and Ed Waldorf. Interment followed in the Westcott cemetery with Orme Funeral Home in charge of arrangements.

MUST ADVISE THE GAME BRANCH WHEN DUCKS SHOT

Last year, many farmers did not notify the game branch that individuals were shooting on their land and as a result, action was taken against any farmer who neglected to inform the game branch when he appoints to shoot on his land, an official of the provincial branch in Calgary has warned.

He pointed out that farmers may shoot ducks which are destroying crops on their lands and may obtain assistance of other persons, giving them written permission provided they notify the head office of the game branch, Edmonton, the names and addresses of assistants and the land on which the shooting is carried on.

"If it is proved the farmer is taking advantage of the situation by allowing people to shoot on his land where no damage is caused by the ducks, action will also be taken," he said.

Get Your New Ration Book At Lions Hall Sept. 10 to 12

SALVATION ARMY DRIVE SPONSORED BY DIDSBURY LIONS CLUB

The annual campaign for funds to carry on the good work of the Salvation Army is now on and in Didsbury the Lions Club has consented to conduct the campaign in town and district.

Er. Wiggins has been appointed chairman of the local committee and has announced that to facilitate the work of collection arrangements have been made to have a number of the Didsbury Lions Club stationed in the Lions Hall when the new ration books are being issued. This will be on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, September 10, 11 and 12. Should you wish to make a donation to the Salvation Army do it when getting your ration book. You will immediately be issued with an official receipt, which will be acceptable by the Income Tax Branch as a deduction when making out your annual return.

A circular letter is being mailed to all householders explaining the need for donations to the Salvation Army. Included will be a self-addressed envelope. You are urged to keep this envelope and send in your donation if unable to contribute when getting your ration book.

This is a worthy cause and everyone is urged to donate to it—and to give as much as possible.

600 Permits Issued to Travel Over the Alaska Highway

Already this year more than 600 permits have been issued by the traffic control at Edmonton for cars to travel over the Alaska highway, according to information received by the Alberta Motor Association. These carried an estimated 2,100 people.

While the restrictions have not yet been lifted for tourist traffic, it is seen that there already is a considerable movement over the road, most of these applicants were business travellers to Alaska for business purposes. Some were prospective settlers from the U.S.

Officials have announced that hunting parties may obtain permits to shoot game in territory adjacent to the highway, providing necessary permits are obtained in British Columbia or the Yukon.

Judging by the interest shown, there will be many establishments along the highway catering to the public next year. Service stations already are operating at a number of stopping places. Officials claim that services for travelling are available for 100 miles at least on the 1,600 mile road.

HUNTERS INTERESTED

Many enquiries are being received in Calgary and Edmonton from American hunters who are planning to come to Alberta this fall. Nearly all the American hunters are interested in big game rather than ducks and other wild birds.

When nearly one million people in Alberta go to town during the week of September 9-16, it will not be to the polling booths of a general election, nor to a circus or annual fair. They will be calling for their new ration book No. 6.

Over 900,000 new ration books will be issued in Alberta, approximately half of these in northern Alberta, the Wartime Prices and Trade Board announced.

Specific days during the week of September 9-16 have been set aside by each ration board in the Alberta region for distribution of the book within their territories. In Didsbury these days are: Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, September 10, 11 and 12, and the books will be issued from the Lions Hall on each of the above days from 10:00 a.m. to 12:00 p.m. In the morning until 12:00 o'clock noon. In the afternoon the hours are from 2 p.m. to 4 p.m.

C.E. Reiter is chairman of the local ration committee and has enlisted the aid of members of the Mens Chapter IOOE to aid in the distribution in Didsbury.

Ration books will also be issued from the Elktion and Westcott Post Offices.

Local ration boards are cautioning all ration book holders to secure their new book during those specific days, as no further distribution will take place until after September 30. In the meantime, "latecomers," those who failed to get their books during the days set aside, will be without ration coupons during the intervening two weeks.

The services of volunteer workers are being enlisted by ration boards throughout the region to assist in the distribution of the new book. All ration book holders are being advised that they must bring their old books along with them when applying for a new one. Likewise the green card marked RB 191 in the old ration book is to be placed in the new book. The new book presented intact in the book when applying for the new book.

All information on this card should be entered in pen and ink.

The Pioneer would like to remind readers that those issuing the ration books are doing so on a voluntary basis and are not receiving any remuneration whatsoever for their work. Keep this in mind and do not abuse those issuing the books. They are doing you a favor.

Much United States Military Equipment Was Left Behind In Germany When Boys Went Home

(By Jack Bell writing from Germany to the Chicago Daily News)

THE army went home, leaving its tools behind. The United States demanded return of its sons, but the cannon they used sit in the mud at two dozen great collecting points in beaten Germany—a quarter million huge field guns, tanks, tractors, trucks, ambulances, jeeps.

On V-E Day, when the guns rolled back in sulka quiet, the ordnance equipment in the European theatre represented an outlay of six and one-half billion dollars. Today, with most of it still here, it's worth about 10 cartons of cigarettes, black market.

What's to become of these miles and miles of things that boys brought back to be demilitarized.

That means the boys will stick chunks of dynamite inside, blow them away so no one ever can use them for war again—and leave them on the hillsides.

Why not salvage them; save the steel, the wheels, the axles, the body frames? They're not worth saving. It would cost more to cut them up with blowtorches and haul them to smelters than the metal is worth—far more.

You get a feeling of depression, a sad realization of the waste as you walk among these long rows of war tools. All through Europe from D-Day until the collapse of the German armies they slugged it out.

Then came perhaps the most rapid disintegration of any army in history.

American troops gleefully wheeled the stuff into collecting points or left it alongside the roads and dashed for the nearest exits toward America.

But surely, you will say, something can be salvaged. Sure, Fabrique Nationale, the highly efficient Belgian arms factory founded by Browning, has reprocessed two million small arms during the last year, most of which have come back home.

One hundred and sixty thousand vehicles have been sold, chiefly to European countries. The latest type Pershing and Sherman tanks have been shipped back to America, along with the late model guns in good condition.

All of the technical instruments—barometers, watches, engines from trucks—everything worth saving—has been or will be removed.

There are trucks by the thousand which can and should be spared because every country in Europe cries for them. But there are no mechanics to do the job, nobody training out the parts needed to put them back on the road.

We had 113,000 of those famous 6 by 6 trucks here in Germany, and most of them still sit here. Everybody in the European theatre wants a jeep, the collecting points have perhaps 50,000 sitting idle on the hillsides, but who's going to put in the needed spare parts.

I would say most certainly that these vehicles are deteriorating on the lots. A child can see that thousands upon thousands of really fine fires are slowly rotting. But army ordinance which had 125,000 men, including thousands of trained mechanics on V-E Day, now has 50,000 men, and most of them are recruits with not the slightest knowledge of mechanics.

The waste is staggering of course. The Long Tom, 155 mm. size, weighed 25,000 pounds, cost $91,000.

Luckily there's plenty of unused TNT around to blow it up. Our 240 mm. howitzer cost $91,000. We had 12,100 tanks on V-E Day and one Sherman cost $35,000. Tank cars cost $35,000 each, our 50-caliber water-cooled machine gun $82.

They've shipped some 4,000 tanks, 8,000 field pieces and quite a million dollars worth of technical equipment back to the States. They've salvaged equipment for what army forces remain here, shipped a half of truck tires to Turkey, sent trucks to Czechoslovakia and other nations. But most of the stuff is going to sit right here.

And perhaps 100 years from now these hillsides will be strewn with weed-covered hulks of demilitarized American fire power, the tanks and guns that helped win the war.

CANNING AT HOME

By this time canning equipment should have been sorted over. Cookers, kettles and jars should all be in good condition. In this year of vast food shortages there was never a greater need for homemakers to prepare for making full use of the perishable fruits and vegetables which already are beginning to be available.

In every community there are organizations ready to give help and direction on the most reliable and practical methods of canning and preserving. Good canning technique will add to the pleasure and satisfaction in putting up jars of fruit and vegetables for use next winter. The time spent will return dividends in better meals and better health for your family.

In 1858 the cable rate between Great Britain and North America was 35 a word.

In A Haze

Man Who Wanted To Be Friendly To A Policeman

A resident of South Porcupine quaffed generously from the cup last Thursday. His normal courage was heightened sufficiently and his confidence in the inherent goodness of man and sinfulness of police officers heightened accordingly.

At any rate he tripped down to the police station in Timmins to tempt a limb of the law with a part of the demon brew.

Well what do you know? The officer was honest, upright and on duty. Whether he realized or not, he defused the proffered potion.

And the character with the Satanic complex, intensified by the fumes from the bottled courage, was required to leave his name and address with the officer for further reference in magistrate's court.

He will probably reason when he appears in court that the whole affair was due directly to the influence of his alcoholic haze. The magistrate will agree and then probably put a price on the fog according to its density.

But there are several morals to this story. Take your pick.

1. Never offer a policeman a drink.

2. Never offer a policeman on duty a drink.

3. Never carry around drinks to offer policemen.

4. Don't drink.

5. Don't buy drinks.

6. Don't buy drinks for policemen.

7. Don't speak to policemen except on business.

8. Don't offer a Timmins policeman a drink on duty especially when you're in the police station, not quite sober and in possession of a bottle of brew in a public place.

There are enough morals there to cover the situation.—Timmins Daily Press.

SWOOD GOES TO MUSEUM

MARIETTA, Ga.—The sword of a Union officer who was killed in the Battle of Kennesaw Mountain in 1864 has been given to the National Battlefield Park Museum here—82 years after the battle.

The weapon was owned by Capt. S. M. Neighbor of an Ohio infantry regiment, whose family sent it to be displayed in the museum as a memorial.

Modern Science

An Opinion About The Value Of Extending Life Span

The Russians have a serum they claim will extend life to 150 years.

That will be pretty old for a Russian, or anybody else. People now 50 would live to the year 2046 before they passed on.

Now if somebody will invent a potion that will make a human being to stand life on this earth for another century without losing his mind, or a rocket ship that will take him safely to a better planet, the Russians may be said to have produced something.

Otherwise their new serum is just as appalling as the atom bomb.—Chicago Daily News.

Britain To Aid France In Building New Air Force

There will doubtless be equal pleasure in Britain and France at the announcement that Britain is to give France substantial aid in building up a new air force.

This aid is being rendered as the result of two recent agreements between the United Kingdom and French governments. It covers the supply of British engines and aircraft and equipment, including radar, radar and signals. French airmen will be trained in the use of this equipment in R.A.F. schools by British instructors. Britain will give technical assistance in the manufacture under license in French factories of British aircraft engines and spare parts. French Naval Air Arm personnel will receive training in Britain.

The following are details of the agreements given by Mr. Hector McNell, Parliamentary Under-Secretary for Foreign Affairs, in the House of Commons on May 25th. Under an agreement concluded at the end of 1945 "His Majesty's Government have supplied, or are to supply, to the French Air Force and aircraft industry on favourable terms: First, Aircraft and equipment for units of the French Air Force in Metropolitan France, French North Africa, French Equatorial Africa and Indo-China, including three years' maintenance requirements. Second, Aircraft and equipment for training schools in France and North Africa, including three years' maintenance requirements. Third, Complete radar trainer and signals equipments, again including three years' maintenance requirements. Fourth, R.A.F. schools and instructors are to train French personnel in the use of British equipment. Fifth, Repair equipment to be issued by the Ministry of Aircraft production for the use of the French aircraft repair organization. Sixth, Facilities and technical assistance in the manufacture under license in French factories of British aircraft and spare parts. Under a supplementary agreement concluded last March "His Majesty's Government are to manufacture and supply to the French Government, under favourable terms, first, Aircraft and equipment for one carrier-based fighter squadron, including the replacement of aircraft and maintenance equipment. Second, Aircraft maintenance and equipment for other units of the French Naval Air Arm. Third, Radio and radar equipment for French-manufactured aircraft, for ground training and for ground stations. And last, there will be training in the United Kingdom for personnel of the French Naval Air Arm."

NEEDED THE LUMBER

A kindly citizen of Mayfield, Idaho, watched a beaver at work below a log dam.

The stream would dry up as the summer advanced, the man left a ladder for the animal. But when he revisited the place a day later, he discovered that the beaver had gnawed the ladder into chunks and was using them to build its dam. There's something remarkably human about that particular little flat-tail. Chicago Sun.

The Duke And Duchess Of Gloucester Were Entertained By Descendants Of The Bounty Crew

AS Governor-General of Australia, the Duke of Gloucester, accompanied by the Duchess, has been entertained by the descendants of the mutineers of the Bounty on the little-known Norfolk Island whose isolation from the outer world was ended by the war. The world which the islanders' forebears renounced six generations ago has stretched forth its newest tentacles to recall them to a strange civilization which before December 22, 1942, relatively few of those living had ever seen.

On that December day, a new epoch was born for the island, because a Royal New Zealand air force plane touched down on the newly-completed landing strip.

For decades Australians have read travellers' tales of how time stands still on this tiny dot in the vast Pacific midway between Australia, New Zealand and the New Hebrides. It has been headlined as a "paradise," a "modern Utopia," a "Pacific Arcadia," where politicians, taxation, divorce, unemployment, housing problems, measles insects, hotels, poverty, snakes and a host of other stains of human society have never been known.

It is not without a pang that those who knew and loved the island in its gain of another century will watch it succumb to the inexorable march of modern communications. Such a thing it will—and indeed the process is already well advanced.

The thousand islanders now own nearly 150 motor cars including jeeps bought under the disposal system from the New Zealand authorities, who in 1942 required them. (New Zealand forces garrisoned Norfolk Island during the war.)

Most families own radio sets. The telephone network is spreading out. The grid of a radar installation thrusts its skeleton of steel starkly against the sky at the summit of Mount Bates the highest peak on the tiny 13 miles square island.

The Duke and Duchess of Gloucester saw it at its best. They were charmed by the rich, incredible green of the little hills and valleys; the ever-changing, opulent hues of nearby Philip Island, the flowering red hibiscus, wild lantana, exotic yellow cactus flowers, and the delicate mauve water hyacinth. And they were entertained at a traditional island feast.

They sat on the ground at the centre of a tablecloth 50 yards by 20 yards, which was almost hidden by platters of cold meats, pork, poultry and island dishes, such as pilchard, coconut, the sweet potatoes sprinkled with coconut and seasoned with cold fried bananas, served with the meats. There were many fruit cakes.

Hundreds of islanders sat on each side and at the ends of the huge tablecloth. They were delighted. They were determined that their guests should eat in true island fashion, where it is not polite to leave an empty plate.

The islanders' reserve soon broke down, and they chattered away in their quaint mixture of old-fashioned West Country English and Tahitian.

Two-Year Wait

Says Television Will Not Be Available For Canadians Until That Time

Television will not be generally available for Canadians for another two or three years.

R. V. Swinton, manager of the electronics division, R.C.A. Victor Co., Ltd., Montreal, made that statement before a meeting of the Rotary Club in Victoria.

After presenting a brief outline of its history, Mr. Swinton said television was based on the principle that "you can cheat the human eye."

He explained his point by mention of the motion picture.

Television dated back to an invention of 1873, the speaker said, and since then there had been a steady stream of discoveries and developments.

Millions of dollars were spent perfecting the invention before it was placed before the public, and that reason it is generally felt that there will be no basic discoveries which will tend to make present equipment obsolete, Mr. Swinton said.

Television sets were selling at $150 in the United States, and ultra-complete units were as high as $100. The speaker explained that television was highly technical, and to date could cover only a limited area. Television programs would be transmitted on a radio basis, as radio programs are today.

As a public service, Mr. Swinton said, television is now out of the laboratory stage. Its importance in the entertainment, educational and advertising field cannot be overestimated.

CANADA'S GRAIN HANDLING COSTS WORLD'S LOWEST

Grain handling and storage charges in Canada are the lowest of any country in the world, shareholders were informed at the 42nd annual meeting of the North-West Line Elevators Association, held Tuesday afternoon in the Grain Exchange Building. The Association is comprised of owners of 3,400 country and terminal elevators operating in Western Canada with a combined storage capacity of 274,900,000 bushels. The organization was formed in 1899 with the object of reducing the expense of handling Western Canada's grain crops to a minimum.

WHO SPEAKS FOR YOU, MR. FARMER

The Northwest Line Elevator Association (according to their own brief) "have taken all means available to them" and have made "six years of unremitting effort" to get the Pools taxed, and have continually criticized the Pools and the Federal government but the ex- ing to the Pools have been of benefit to the growers deliver- ing to other elevators.

LINE ELEVATOR ASSERTIONS

The line elevator's statement: "On November 23, 1941, the United Grain Growers Limited, faced with the necessity of meeting the policy of competition thus initiated by the Pools, in turn declared a patronage dividend of $200,000."

More farmers apparently benefited according to Section 29 of the line elevator's brief:

"On August 24, 1942, the association wrote the commissioner of Income Tax a letter calling his attention to the correspondence exchanged with him on the subject of patronage dividends commencing with the association's letter of November 17, 1941, pointing out that several elevator companies had been obliged to meet the competition of the Pools by making payments of the nature of a patronage dividend and concluding with the following paragraph:

"As your department has had this matter before it now for some months we would appreciate it greatly if you would advise us as to whether or not you have reached the point of issuing a ruling which we could pass on to our member companies."

And Section 32:

"On October 31, 1942 the association interviewed the minister of finance and laid before him figures showing the extent to which patronage dividend payments were paid out of money which otherwise would have gone to the government in taxes and advised the minister that a number of the line companies had been forced during the current year to pay patronage dividends in order to meet the Pool competition."

The line elevators feel that they have made an exhaustive effort to have the Pools taxed and that nothing has been left undone that might achieve that end.

Section 51 states that:

"After six years of unremitting effort on the part of the association and its members the Pools are still enjoying practical immunity from the taxation bearing so heavily on their competitors and will continue to do so for as long as the failure to enforce the law is permitted to continue."

NOTES FROM THE EAST

Monday evening Miss Mason of Crossfield arrived at the home of Fred Metz as supervisor for the Burnside school.

Miss Evelyn Dowell, together with Miss Mason, Mrs. Dowell and Roy, motored to Sunnyslope Monday night. Evelyn is to board with Mrs. M. Sullivan and attend high school there.

Fred Metz had a runaway while on the binder last week, and although he received some bad bruises and his binder badly wrecked, he got off luckily, for he could have been killed. Fred says, "I have run a binder ever since I was five years old and this is my first runaway." That's a long time Fred, but there is always a first time for everything.

Mrs. Walter McCoy and family were dinner guests at the home of Mrs. Bruce Shells and visited with Mr. and Mrs. Harold Shells in the evening.

Mr. C.F. Dooley was a Sunday dinner guest at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W.H. Coates, Mr. Dooley, formerly of Didsbury, called on other friends in district and town in the evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Billy Coates and Art Coates spent Monday in Olds and district. Crops are somewhat later west of Olds than in this district.

Miss Marjorie Burns has returned to her home to help during the harvest.

The Lone Pine W.I. will meet on the second Wednesday of September (11th) at the home of Mrs. Chas. Mardon. Everybody welcome and please bring article suitable for bazaar.

Mrs. Fred Nelson and family of Calgary spent Sunday and Monday with her father, Mr. Hugh McLean.

Miss Norma McCulloch has finally received her Grade 9 diploma. It arrived Friday stating that she had passed her grade with a "B".

WHEAT POOL COMMENT

The line elevators have used the strength of the Wheat Pool muster to persuade the Federal government to tax the Pools, and this support has not been denied.

Farmers delivering to the "several elevator companies" can now understand the unusual practice of line companies paying patronage dividends.

Payment of patronage dividends by line companies is so unheard of that they thought even the Minister of Finance should know about it.

If you think the effort of the co-operatives has been worth while, help them to help you by delivering all your products to the co-operatives, and particularly to Alberta Pool Elevators.

BURNSIDE NEWS NOTES

Canning of fruit and vegetables, cutting, stooking and swathing grain, and such hobbies as crawling under wires and trying to get repairs are now in full swing in this neighborhood.

Allen Hughes and Miss Doris Wearmouth were married at the "manually" Didsbury on August 29th. Congratulations "Rusty".

Mr. and Mrs. Brander of White Rock, B.C. are visiting with their son Alce and his family.

Mrs. Robert McCulloch motored to Calgary last week end. Bob, who accompanied her on the homeward journey, is here to look after the harvesting of his crop.

The Burnside School opened on Tuesday with Miss Mason, niece of Jim Spalding of the Carstairs district, in command. We wish her success in her venture. We are very fortunate in obtaining the services of Miss Mason for, as far as we know, the Jutland school is still without a teacher. Mrs. Atkinson, who was offered the position, has declined to accept.

Lewis Persinger is still on the sick list and will not be able to take any harvest work this fall.

Mrs. Howard Charlton and her infant son returned home Tuesday. One of our local sailors discharged from the Royal Canadian Navy on the cessation of hostilities and who, according to his own story, was glad to get back, is now thinking of joining up again. Once more he is going to sea in the dark kind, or is it? This time to sail on the "rosy" sea of matrimony.

Is this true Jack? Mrs. Grace McCulloch, of Turner Valley, who with her husband was on a business trip to Olds, called in and visited with the family.

The shower held at the home of Mrs. Eckel for Mrs. "Happy" Wall, well known in this district, was well attended. Unfortunately the stress of work in the harvest fields prevented many relatives and friends from being there. However, those that could attend carried the presents and good wishes of the less fortunate ones, so after all every one attended in spirit at least.

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Davidson (nee Ella Bittner) and family of three sons are renewing acquaintances in the neighborhood after several years' absence.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Henderson and Jean of Lethbridge visited last Thursday afternoon at the Ivor Weber home.

MELVIN NEWS NOTES

On Sunday evening about 80 guests attended the banquet held in the Melvin Hall to honor the local baseball team after their successful season. No one would guess to see the loaded tables that food was rationed and the big feast was topped off with lots of ice cream and home made cake—no less. Geo. Youngs acted as master of ceremonies for the evening.

Everyone from the small fry up enjoyed the bounteous repast and owing to the busy season the gathering broke up in good time.

It is interesting to note that this is the sixth time the Melvin ball team has won a cup.

Our sympathy is extended to the bereaved ones on the death of Grandma Sanderman on Monday morning. Grandma Sanderman was past 91 years of age.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed Landeen and Ethel were week end visitors at the W. Weidner home and we were glad to see them at the banquet. Before moving to Calgary the Landeens were active members of the Melvin club, Mr. Landeen having served for some time on the Community Hall Board.

School days are here once again, but not in the "little red school house." The Melvin pupils are attending school in Didsbury this year. E. Dupont has the contract to transport pupils to and from school, but at present this has to be done by car as it will take some time to obtain a bus.

Miss Wynne Jackson is teaching at the Rugby school for a few weeks till other arrangements can be made.

Harvesting operations are in full swing and if the fine weather holds out a while longer we'll all harvest a bumper crop. There has been no hail or frost in the district and gardens have also been very productive.

Mr. E. Dupont has been spending some time at the Dupont farm with his children and grandchildren. Gloria Gauthier, who was also spending her vacation at the Duponts, returned to Calgary on Monday to attend school again.

Deserves Recognition

Town in England Sought As Resting Place For Old Engine

All the world looks for an engine, and so there will be much sympathy for a correspondent who pleads today for a recognition of the engine in danger of the scrapheap. An old engine has been sought, but the museums are full, and it is suggested that, even as the comparative juvenile locomotive lives tranquilly at Canterbury, so a home should be found for it at Watlington where it last working years were spent. Whether there is an appropriate site the citizens of Watlington best know, but in a general way it can hardly be denied that an engine is a more beautiful object than a gentleman, he be in a Roman toga or a frock coat. There are many towns in England where some local celebrity, even a departed mayor, might well be buried from his pedestal to make room for so vital and imposing a creature. The love of engines binds us in all manner of subtle and tender ties to our earliest days, and it is unending. An electric train has no power to stir the pulse, but a "steamie" soughing through a station with its little funnel of smoke and steam behind still sets every head on the platform turning. When we were very young indeed it had a real in the traction engine with its slower majesty and earth-shaking tread. To hear ever the garden wall and wait expectant until at last it turned the corner of the lane was supreme bliss, but then it is impossible to say how much it owed to the herald with the red and green flag.

With the advancing years we shall probably vote rather for the apocalyptic "steamie" and the thundering onslaught of the down express. As to the ideal spot from which to enjoy it there must be various opinions, but there is much to be said for a bridge. The train heading for us with so terrible a directness that we feel positively brave in standing our ground till we are enveloped in a warm cloud of spitting steam. We dash to the other side to watch it rush away and then slowly come to earth again the great moment is past and we gaze with a just awe at the solitary metals gleaming into the distance. All engines are beautiful, and the particular "steamie" has a very tall funnel and a dome resembling a tea urn. It may have an antique man for funnel gear, also piled and the youth of today, even stepping at strange distances, prefer an engine with the smoke coming out of a mere hole in the center of a volcano. From what are older, however, will bring forth the better, and the more faded the better. We were all young once, and there was something of the "steamie" in this engine, still almost young with its red paint, in all the numerous acres of engine sheds, was suddenly confronted before a tall and topknoted specter and started and cheer on its maiden voyage to meander through Bedfordshire. Surely it deserves the fate of an old man, that having done its task and pulled into a meadow for a dignified old age. Whether we regard it stoically as a landmark in railway history or with ignorant affection as one of a loved and thrilling race, we may hope that it will find its niche in London Times.

Hugh Dalton, chancellor of the exchequer, has declared that the Labor government has already redistributed Britain's wealth.

Funny and Otherwise

Civility

They were discussing a mutual friend.
"Brown is a good fellow, really," said one, "but he treats his poor wife miserably."

"Does he beat her?" the other asked.
"No, No! He just refuses to argue with her."

Unappreciative

At last she produced a nicely bound volume and showed it to him.
"There, Willie, that's for you," she said graciously. "And I'll be delighted to read it to you at your bedtime."

"Thank you, Willie," when paper is so scarce. Aunt Jane, who did you bring me a good-for-nothing book to be read to out of?"

Know The Answer

"Johnny, can you tell me the difference between attraction of gravitation and attraction of cohesion?"
"Yes, sir. Attraction of gravitation pulls a drunken man to the ground, and the attraction of cohesion prevents him getting up again."

Unusual

The minister was asking one of his flock why he had not attended church recently.
"Well, you see, sir," said the man, "I've been troubled with a union on my foot."

"Strange," said the parson, "that a union should impede the pilgrim's progress?"

No Wonder

A lifeless one of the big states hated to be asked needless questions. One day a fussy old lady entered the lift.

"Don't you ever feel sick," going up and down in this lift all day?" she asked.
"Yes, ma'am," said the boy.
"Is it the motion going up?"
"No, ma'am."
"Is it the motion going down?"
"No, ma'am."
"Then, what is it?"
"Answering questions, ma'am."

Clever Barber

The barber was rather careless and cut his customers' hair in several places, patching up the cuts with paper.
The customer handed the barber half a dollar. "Keep the change," he said. "Your versatility is amazing; you're a barber, a butcher and paperhanger all in one."

Good Prescription

A man received no noticeable prescription from his doctor. After it had been made up for him by the chemist, it was returned to him, and he used it for two years as a pass on the railway, for gaining admission to dances, cinemas, and theatres; and in the evenings his daughter used to practice it on the piano.

Just Lazy

A landlady felt that he had received a "call" to the church, and "trained" for and subsequently entered the ministry.

In due course he was appointed to a church, and meeting one of his parishioners one day, was questioned about his past experiences. When the minister told him he was once a landlady, with an income of $5000 a year, the man asked, "Ah, what do you get here?"

"Fifteen hundred dollars a year," was the reply.
"Ah, I thought so," concluded the other. "Anything 'further than work?'"

Good Idea

A shipwrecked sailor who had spent five years on a desert island, was surprised one day to see a ship drop anchor in the bay. A small boat came ashore and an officer handed the sailor a bundle of newspapers.

"The captain says," he told the sailor, "that you read what's going on in the world and then let us know if you want to be rescued."

"It is not good for a man to keep too much to himself," states a psychologist. The income tax authorities are said to share this view.

INTERESTING STORY—

"MRS. MANNERS RUNS AMOK"

By LEONARD DEE

Wheeler Newspaper Syndicate (Copyright)

HUMMING gaily, Martha Manners

punched plump, hands plump, batch of bread dough. Tomorrow's Sunday dinner had to be especially nice for her daughter Alice was coming with her husband—and those happy-go-lucky youngsters were crazy about homemade bread. Pondering the radiant happiness of the young couple, Martha's thoughts were winging back to her first married years with Tom—the crazy little tricks they'd play, the picnic, the parties—

Thinking of Tom as he used to be, made Martha think of him now.

She stopped humming and listened. She heard nothing—but that was not what she wanted. She should have heard the steady slap-slap of a beater against a dusty carpet; for not five minutes ago she had assigned Tom the task of beating the living room rug.

Wiping floury hands in her apron, Martha crossed the kitchen and looked into the yard.

Well, of all the lazy good for nothing! Tom gossiping over the back fence with that old blabbermouth, Sam Pettibone! As if he hadn't a care in the world—and so much to be done!

"Tom! There was just the right amount of severity in her tone to warn Tom she meant business.

But neither Tom nor Sam Pettibone looked up. They were intently examining something.

So that was it—a fishing pole! Darned if the two old codgers weren't acting like a couple of kids with a new toy! Besides, Sam Pettibone's nose was as bearded the gleaming red. Sam Pettibone was pointing out the roof's features with the proprietary pride of a man exhibiting an Old Master.

Martha Manners couldn't help smiling. Poor Tom! how he loved fishing! And here, why, let's see—years and years since he's got away. She and Alice had gone too. They had had a glorious time and she had even caught a fish—and how good those trout had tasted fresh from the stream into the frying pan.

An idea was forming. But first, womanlike, Martha Manners decided the men must be taught a lesson—and at the same time afford a little amusement for the women.

It would be fun to see the dismay registered on Tom's face if she walked out and caught him red-handed in the act of neglecting his duty when the house needs to be waxed, the front lawn cut and the Saturday shopping to be done. But it wouldn't be fair to make Tom appear benighted in front of Sam Pettibone.

She went to the telephone and dialed the Pettibone number.

"Hello, Sarah," and her voice sank to an undertone as she appraised Mrs. Pettibone of the delinquency of the Manners. A conspiracy was traced up to the accompaniment of giggles.

Silently, surreptitiously, two screens were opened and closed. In opening, golden rays of good weather shone each clutching a beam in a promising manner, tipped over the glass.

Suddenly two beams were raised. Swiftly the screens were closed through the air, descended resolutely on the respective bosoms of two very startled husbands.

"Hello, would you, you silly thing!" yelled Mrs. Manners; and the beam switched again, setting perfect hot number two.

"You good-for-nothing, thoughtless, shrill Mrs. Pettibone! At Sam, executing a similar maneuver with her beam."

The dumfounded surprise on Tom Manners' face as he understood this unexpected bombardment from the rear was matched in equal pathos by the consternation on Sam Pettibone's.

The two men stood dumb to the ground, jaws sagging, shoulders slumping, trying to figure out the cause for such a dramatic onslaught.

Sam attempted a white grin as a sort of "come-father-us-surrender" signal. "M-Martha!" said Tom in his most conciliatory tone.

"S-Sarah!" Sam spoke in the manner of a man trying to reason with a dangerous maniac.

Then, as if manipulated by a string like marionettes, each raised her beam ominously.

"But this time the beams didn't descend, because husband can stand only so much from the fair sex—then it goes into action."

Tom Manners took to his heels and departed rapidly out of the house range. Sam Pettibone did likewise. The two women suddenly relaxed their warlike attitude and broke into roars of laughter. They chuckled and had-and then rolled down their plump cheeks. It had been the best fun, they agreed between gasps, since they had conspired to put cayenne pepper in the men's porridge last April Fool's Day. And besides, they were just getting back for the many tricks the men had played.

Tom and Sam, seeing that the wife's wrath had only been in the spirit of good clean fun, returned with a brave show of nonchalance.

"Knew you were fooling all the time," grinned Sam.

"Yeah," agreed Tom. "We heard you coming like a couple of elephants breaking through a forest, and decided to let you enjoy your little bit of horseplay."

The women scoffed, twitted the men with cowardice.

"Afraid, eh?" said Tom. "Well, you coming like a couple of elephants breaking through a forest, and decided to let you enjoy your little bit of horseplay."

"Yeah," said Sam, "and nobody's gonna say we ain't either."

"Well if nobody's gonna say we're two old fellows," laughed Martha Manners, "of course we aren't."

Sam and I are going with you. We arranged it over the phone just before our little surprise. So—it's a date for next Saturday. A real old-fashioned picnic. Fresh trout friend in batter, homebaked bread—

Her dignity! yipped Sam, attempting an impromptu jig.

Well, Sam said, Tom, putting an arm around Martha's ample waist, "you've got to admit the old folks aren't so bad after all."

Early Start Best

Human Efficiency Is At Its Highest In The Morning

Getting under way in the morning is a real task for many of us. Yet there is gold in the day's early hours if we will exert the extra effort to establish morning work habits.

Human efficiency rises and falls during the day. This "diurnal course of efficiency" as it is called, can be used to get more things done. For most persons it follows this general pattern:

Morning 8 a.m. to 10 a.m. 100 per cent.
10 a.m. to 12 noon 90 per cent.
Afternoon 1 p.m. to 3 p.m. 80 per cent.
Evening 4 p.m. to 6 p.m. 70 per cent.

An astonishing number of self-motivated men and women have been "morning workers." It helped them get more things done and more quickly and usually better.

About The Weather

Philosopher Has A Good Word To Say About Different Kinds

A friend was complaining to Ruskin about the weather.

"Why, Henry," rejoined the genial philosopher, "there's really in such things as bad weather."

"You're right," the friend retorted. "No," replied Ruskin. "Sunshine is delicious, rain is refreshing, wind braces you up, snow is exhilarating—all different kinds of good weather."

"All right, but right now what we want, and badly need, is a lot of that refreshing quality in good weather. We need a lot of rain."

IN TWO LESSONS

The salesman stepped his car at a farm house and asked the way to the nearest hotel. The farmer pointed down the road.

"You turn left at the school house," he advised. "Then you go straight ahead till you get to Gad Shor's house. Then you take the left fork in the road and keep on for five miles."

The salesman nodded. "That's clear enough," he said. "And where does that bring me?"

"Well," he announced, "that brings you right back to where we're standing now. Right here."

The salesman's eyes popped. "Right here?" he asked. "But I don't understand. Why should I come back here?"

"The farmer shifted his plug of tobacco.

"To get the rest of the directions," he explained. "If I told you them all at once, you might get confused!"

Author Claims Churchill Was President Roosevelt's Seventh Cousin

Little known facts about Franklin Delano Roosevelt's ancestors, running the gamut from the illustrious to the scallawags, are told in a book written by a third cousin of the late President.

The author, Daniel W. Delano, Jr., of Buffalo, said that study of the Delano family tree disclosed that Mr. Roosevelt was a seventh cousin of Britain's Winston Churchill, but said he doubted that Roosevelt knew of the relationship.

The relationship occurred through Mr. Churchill's mother, the former Jennie Jerome—a native of Brooklyn, N.Y.—who was in the Delano line on her maternal side. She married Lord Randolph Churchill.

Mr. Delano spent 18 years studying the family's genealogy, stretching according to his records from its beginnings with the Actin, Roman patricians of 600 B.C., down to Mr. Roosevelt.

The Delano family was noted, he relates, for its pioneers, seafaring men, political leaders and philanthropists. He said he shows it was "the Delano in Roosevelt that made him what he was—a sort of democratic grand duke, with a benign compassion for the underprivileged and a passion for the sea and ships."

Telephones For North

Connecting Medium Will Give Isolated Settlements Contact With "Outside"

Many isolated settlements in the vast northwest which not so long ago knew only the dog team and canoe and airplane as their connecting medium with the "outside," will get telephone connections through a transaction completed between Northwest Air Command and Alberta government telephones for extension of service recently established with the Peace River country.

Some of the points to benefit by the new telephone chain include Wagner and Little Smoky in Alberta; Dawson Creek, Peace Coulee, Fort St. John, Fort Nelson and other remote stations in British Columbia and Watson Lake and Whitehorse in the Yukon.

Position Could Be Filled

He was undersized, meek, diffident, unshaded and had applied for a job as night-watchman.

Yes, said the manager, eyeing him dubiously, "but the fact is we want someone who is restless and uneasy, especially at night, someone who thinks the worst of everybody and whose suspicions are seldom if ever allayed; someone who sleeps with one eye open because someone with remarkable hearing, who starts at the slightest sound; someone who is always listening, thinking there are bad characters about. A meek, mild watchman would be of no use to us. We want a large aggressive, intrepid and dangerous person; a good shot, bad tempered and revengeful, too. The kind of person, in fact, who, when roused, is a find incarnate."

"I'll send the wife around," said the little man.

OUR COMPLETE SHORT STORY—

LUKE-WARM TO HOT

By ERNEST MILES

Copyright
Wheeler Newspaper Syndicate

USUALLY his behavior was calm and patient, but now Luke Conner began to blurt and fume as he sat waiting on the bench in the reception room of the Tilson Specialty Company.

"Luke-warm" is what his wife, Jane, sometimes called him, and many times she had said, "Why don't you get hot under the collar some time and stand up for your rights?" Well, this was one time he felt like taking her advice.

He was placed in this spot because for more than twelve years he had worked for Belmont's as a sales man and having done a good job was considered one of their best men. It came as a real shock when the Miller people absorbed his old firm and, in spite of his record, notified him his services were being dispensed with along with those of most of his old associates.

That had been three months ago and Luke had not yet been able to find a job. Then this Mr. Tilson had telephoned and made a definite appointment for him to call. The advertisement Luke had answered seemed like the very job he could handle, so promptly at eleven o'clock he arranged, he had presented himself and taken a seat. Luke had high hopes for an interview which would assure him of being busy again in the work he loved.

Now it was nearly twelve and he was still there, waiting, but resenting more and more the run-around he seemed to be getting. Only the thought of Jane and the baby at home, waiting for some real good news, prevented him from leaving there in a huff.

He snapped out of it when his thoughts were interrupted by the switchboard girl. "Mr. Tilson is very sorry but he is still tied up in a conference. He wants you to be sure and telephone him later this afternoon and he will make an appointment."

Luke couldn't even answer for he was now choking mad. As he swung out of the office he was not only hot under the collar but in a blaze from head to foot.

Out in the hall he noticed the next door was marked "Private." This would be a good chance to face this guy Tilson and tell him just what he thought of him. Luke barged right into an office where a man was sitting alone with two beautiful toy dogs on the desk in front of him. These were absorbing his attention.

This made Luke madder than before and he barked right out, "I'm the fellow you just kept waiting for an hour and then were too busy to—"

"But—" the startled man broke in.

"But nothing," raved Luke. "If you're too busy playing with a couple of dolls to keep an appointment you make with me, I can tell you I wouldn't want a job with you even if you offered me the best sales position in the world."

Before the amazed man could say a word, Luke dashed out. Then, like a pricked balloon, his anger died as he realized what he had done. What could he tell Jane and just where would he turn now?

He felt weak and leaned against the wall for support. As he was moping his hour he was startled by a voice. "Hey, young fellow, come back here and tell me what this is all about."

Shrilly, Luke followed the man back into the office, stammering. "All right, Mr. Tilson, I was upset after I'd waited as long as I guess I made a fool of myself. I'm very sorry."

The man studied him, then, said, ing, said, "First, I'm not Tilson. My name is Sam Peters, President of the Peters Toy Company. Tilson's office is next door. Now, tell me what made you charge in like a wild steer."

Luke's face was flaming red now as he told his story.

"I would have been hopping mad," said Mr. Peters. "Are you going to telephone Tilson and make that new appointment?"

Luke began to see red again. "No sir, I certainly won't telephone him. I'll just keep on looking and I'll find a job in spite of him."

"That's the old fighting spirit I like. Now let's have a little chat. What sales experience have you had?"

Luke told of his years with Belmont's, the different territories he had covered and the products he had handled.

Mr. Peters listened intently and, with a broad grin, said, "Well, young man, I wouldn't be surprised if you don't have to look any further for that job."

"You mean—"

"That's exactly what I mean. Our post-war plans call for a big expansion program. How would you like the chance of being Assistant Salesmanager of the Peters Toy Company?"

"Oh, boy," grinned Luke, hardly able to remain seated, "that's just the kind of a break I'm looking for. Just tell me when I can start."

"Well, you can come and have lunch with me now and we'll arrange the details, that is, if you can spare the time."

"That suits me fine, Mr. Peters. But may I telephone the good news to Jane first, and tell her what a hot number her Luke-warm husband has turned out to be?"

"Sure go ahead and tell her you're the hottest thing in town."

Stranger In The House

By Paul Nale In The Louisville, Ky., Courier-Journal

The Truth is Stranger Than Fiction Department and the How to Make the World Better Division will have to argue their respective claims for this incident.

She lives alone in a neat little cottage at the edge of the city—a good walk from the nearest bus.

One morning she was awakened by a heavy-set man, who didn't notice any words about it, he wanted something to eat. She was in a hurry to catch her bus, but in a burst of impetuous good will she said:

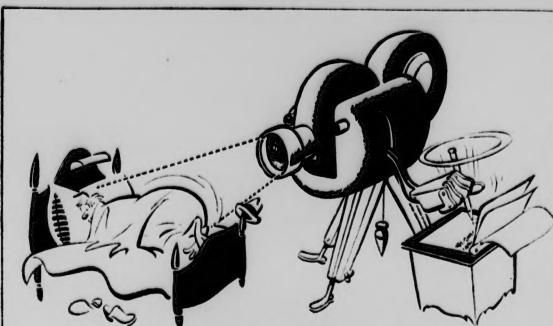

"I live in that little white cottage off to itself over there. In the refrigerator I have what's left of a pork roast and sweet potatoes. Here's the key. . . you'll find the place in pretty much of a mess—but be sure to help yourself. Then, please just lock up and put the key under the mat on the front porch."

All the way downtown, she was dogged by the thought that she was the prize fool of fools. What would she find when she returned?

Sure enough, there was the key—right where she had asked that it be left under the mat. But when she opened the door and switched on the lights, she could scarcely believe her eyes; the house had been thoroughly swept and dusted, and everything was in its clean place. Even the windows had been washed. Yes, as expected, there was less food in the refrigerator, but the interior was gleaming with its fresh wash job.

On top in plain view was a roughly written note: "Dear Miss," it began, "you probably will never know what you have done for me. I was worried a few days ago, and the going hasn't been too easy. But I've got what it takes now. Thanks a million." It was signed, merely "Your Friend."

The English word, guest stems from hasty, a Latin word meaning "hurry."

EVERY EXTRA TURN HAS A MEANING OF ITS OWN!

The average person shifts position thirty-five times during a night's sleep. This is quite normal and healthy.

But how many times do you twist and turn? It is rather difficult to find out—one cannot exactly ask some member of the household to stay up and count! Yet that would tell the story of how normally you sleep.

Restful sleep is not a matter of how tired you are, what kind of a bed you sleep on, which side you sleep on—it is more likely to depend on the state of your nerves.

A common cause of frayed nerves—which result in disturbed sleep—is the caffeine in tea and coffee. If you find caffeine is bothering you, why not switch to Postum? It contains no stimulants of any kind. It has a full-bodied flavor all its own. Form the Postum habit! Make it right in the cup with boiling water or hot milk. Costs less than a cent a serving.

MOTOR TOURISTS FLOW TO ALBERTA PARKS

Indicating the increased flow of motor tourist traffic to Alberta this year, reports of our registrars at four national parks show an increase of 94.07 per cent for the seven months ended July 31 last, over the same period of 1945.

These figures have been issued by the publicity branch of the provincial government.

The reports indicate that despite the fact that many cities and towns have accumulated taxes to capacity at certain periods, the tourist volume has reached a high point in this first holiday period since the end of World War Two.

Taking the total of the four parks Banff, Jasper, Waterton and Elk Island, it is seen that 247,358 cars were registered at the parks. In the same period of 1945, the total was 127,461 cars, showing an increase of 149,897 this season.

As in previous years, Banff led the way with 129,319 cars, compared with 74,125 in 1945, or an increase of 73.11 per cent.

PLENTY OF ELIGIBLE MALES IN CANADA TO GO AROUND

Canadian girls who feel a mite dismayed by the fact that some 35,549 war brides already in Canada and 19,000 more still to come have taken a lot of Canadian men out of circulation can rest assured—there are plenty of eligible males to go around.

The 1941 census divided Canada's total population into 5,900,526 males and 5,666,119 females. That's a male surplus of 234,417 but it hardly gives a true picture—figures are much more exact.

The latest figures, obtained by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics in a labor force survey in June, show that single members of the labor force in Canada, between the ages of 20 and 25 are outnumbered by eligible males by a five to four ratio—and after each girl has selected her man, there'll be 29,000 left to form a huge slag line strung out across the Dominion.

For every two women in Canada between the ages of 25 and 44 there are three men of the same age. Single men in this age group exceed eligible females by about 97,000.

Competition is going to be a little tougher for als, who is just going to school now, when she decides to assess her marital changes. But she has still time to select an occasional admirer for in the 14-19 age group there are 617,000 boys compared with 595,000 girls.

There is little to choose from the different sections of Canada. It is always the same story, eligible males outnumbering females by substantial minorities except in one instance. In British Columbia there are between the ages of 14 and 19 the same number of boys as girls—37,000.

But girls if "you've a hankerin' to get hitched," grab the next train for the golden west where men are men and there are lots of them. On the prairies men between 20 and 24 outnumber women almost three to two.
